Elite Youth Sport Policy and Management

A comparative analysis

Edited by Elsa Kristiansen, Norwegian School of Sport Sciences, Oslo, Norway, Milena M. Parent, University of Ottawa, Canada and Barrie Houlihan, Loughborough University, UK

Series: Routledge Research in Sport Business and Management

Elite youth sport competitions have proliferated in the past 30 years, with the Youth Olympic Games representing a high water mark. This book explores elite youth sport policy and management across eighteen countries, examining issues such as: why elite youth sport events have become more common; the attitude of selected stakeholders (such as NGBs, parents/carers, governments and sponsors) towards the growth in elite youth sport; how the interests of young elite athletes are protected; how elite development systems are adjusted to cater for the requirements of youth athletes; and how the growth in elite youth sport affects a sport's development strategy.
